

S0ren Hougaard

The Business Idea

The Early Stages of Entrepreneurship

With 20 Figures and 17 Tables

<£J Springer

Contents

Preface	7
Introduction and summary	9
1. Entrepreneurship as a competency	23
1.1 Entrepreneurship as a concept	24
1.2 Who becomes an entrepreneur?	27
1.3 The basic competencies of the entrepreneurial process	28
1.4 Entrepreneurship as a process	29
1.5 Invention, innovation and entrepreneurship	31
1.6 Inventory: Entrepreneurial motives and competencies	35
2. Creative market insight	43
2.1 Solution versus problem orientation	43
2.2 The Four-Leaf-Clover Model	46
2.3 Occurrences in a diagnostic perspective	49
2.4 Incongruities as a source of ideas	55
2.5 Innovation as a problem detector	58
2.6 Missing links	60
2.7 Inventory: creative market insight	61
3. The window of opportunity	69
3.1 The window of opportunity, entrepreneurship and luck	70
3.2 A business venture typology	73
3.3 Domains of opportunities	79
3.4 The grid of opportunity as a diagnostic method	80
3.5 Opportunity and lifecycle	83
3.6 From opportunity to congregation	87
3.7 Window of opportunity paradoxes	90
3.8 Inventory: Evaluation of the window of opportunity	93
4. Creation of the business concept	97
4.1 How to define a business	97

4.2	The three main tracks of the business concept	102
4.3	A business definition typology	104
4.4	Market boundaries and entrepreneurial opportunities	110
4.5	Factors influencing business definition and concept design	114
4.6	Inventory: Creation of the business concept
	- in search of uniqueness	117
5.	Entry barriers to markets	121
5.1	Introduction to entry barriers	121
5.2	Entry barriers type A: Customer access	123
5.3	Entry barriers type B: Customer acceptance	126
5.4	Entry barriers type C: Competitor reaction	136
5.5	Unconventional roads to the market	138
5.6	Inventory: The barrier wheel	142
6.	Strategies for market entry	145
6.1	Initial reflections on market entry	146
6.2	Entry strategy type A: First mover - first, the biggest, best	151
6.3	Entry strategy type B: Differentiation	157
6.4	Entry strategy type C: Generic product-market strategy	166
6.5	Inventory: Entry strategies	169
7.	The positive influence of competitors	175
7.1	Introduction strategy and choice of competitors	175
7.2	Competitors as strategic midwives	180
7.3	Good competitors	189
7.4	Comparison between useful and harmful competitors	192
7.5	Inventory: Competitor barometer for a new enterprise	194
8.	Entrepreneurship and business ideas in the embryonic market	199
8.1	A different challenge	200
8.2	Approach type A: The adaptation method	204
8.3	Approach type B: The experimental method	215
8.4	Approach type C: The combination method	217
8.5	Strategies for a new business venture in embryonic markets	222
8.6	Inventory: Risk analysis and risk management
	in innovative situations	224
	Index	229