Cross-Cultural Management in Work Organisations

Ray French

HOCHSCHULE
LIECHTENSTEIN
Bibliothek

Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development

Contents

Acknowledgements and credits ix

List of figures and tables x

PART 1: SETTING THE SCENE > 1

Chapter 11ntroduction 3
Objectives 3
Cross-cultural management - an everyday activity? 3
A multi-layered subject area 4
An emerging area 4
Non-cultural explanations 6
The centrality of ethics 7
A changing world <8
The organisation of this book 9

PART 2: CULTURE - USES AND LIMITATIONS 13

Chapter 2 The meaning(s) of culture 15
Objectives 15
Introduction 15
Defining culture 16
Levels of analysis 18
Dealing with the ecological fallacy 23
Culture change 24
Convergence and divergence 25
Interpreting culture profiles 27
Is national culture still meaningful? 27
Organisational culture 27
National and organisational culture - similarities 28
Linking the macro and micro levels 30
Non-cultural explanations 30

Chapter 3 Understanding models of culture 33
Objectives 33
Introduction 33
A twenty-first-century view 34
Geert Hofstede's pivotal contribution 37
The Chinese Value Survey and the fifth dimension 39
Utilising Hofstede's model of culture 40
Criticisms of Hofstede's work 41
At the core of cross-cultural studies: Kluckhohn and Strodtbeck's work 42
Fons Trompenaars' 7-D model: practical steps for doing business 43
Evaluating Trompenaars' work 46
Shalom Schwartz's universal values model 47
A potentially valuable departure 49

Cultural differences in communication style 50
Non-cultural explanations 52

Chapter 4 Conceptualising culture - the way forward 55
Objectives 55
Introduction 55
Evaluating bipolar value-based models of culture 56
An example of the emic approach - guanxi 57
A time for new research methods? 59
Senior managers as the object of study? 60
Some emerging theoretical approaches 61
Convergence, divergence, globalisation and cross-cultural management 62
A new domestic stage for cross-cultural management? 64.

PART 3: CROSS-CULTURAL SOCIAL RELATIONS IN THE WORKPLACE 67

Chapter 5 Culture and organisation structure 69
Objectives 69
Introduction 69
Classical models of structure 70
The Chinese small business model 72
Alternatives to bureaucracy - adapting to 'contingencies' 73
Contingent factors 75
Culture and the contingency approach 77
The institutional level 78
Do cultural values underlie organisation structure? 78
Contemporary and emerging structures 81
Culture and structure - a complex area 83

Chapter 6 Intercultural communication 87
Objectives 87
Introduction 87
The need for awareness 87
Stereotyping revisited 88
Other barriers to intercultural communication 90
Mixed messages and non-verbal communication 91
Enhancing intercultural communication 93
Cross-cultural theory and communication 95
The crucial contribution of Hall's low- and high-context model 96
Chinese culture 97
Levels of communication 99

Chapter 7 Leadership 105
Objectives 105
Introduction 105
The traits approach 106
The behavioural approach 108
Implicit leadership theories 110
The contingency approach 112
Project GLOBE 113
Evaluation of Project GLOBE 119

The institutional level 119
Emerging twenty-first century approaches to leadership 120

Chapter 8 Motivation and exchange 123
Objectives 123
Introduction 123
Universal needs? 124
Self-actualisers? 124
Is the content approach to motivation culture-bound? 126
Positive psychology 126
Job characteristics: a universal link to motivation? 127
Needs and job characteristics models in different cultures - some evidence 129
How are people motivated? Orientations to work across cultures 132
Other 'process' models of motivation 135
Conclusion 137
Globalised motivational strategies 138

PART 4: MANAGING ACROSS OR WITHIN CULTURES 141

Chapter 9 Intercultural competencies, training and ethics 143
Objectives 143
Introduction 143
Overcoming culture shock - the core intercultural competency? 143
The search for effective interventions 145
Intercultural competencies at home 147
Is cultural awareness sufficient? 149
Cross-cultural training - other considerations 151
The effectiveness of cross-cultural training 152
The ethical dimension 152
Ethics and the cross-cultural manager 154
Gender issues and ethics 156
Dealing with ethical dilemmas 157
Non-negotiable moral issues 158

Chapter 10 Culture and human resource management 161
Objectives 161
Introduction 161
International HRM in context 161
Varieties of capitalism 164
Culture and human resource management 166
Culture and the functional areas of HRM 167
The effect of culture - a mixed picture? 174

PART 5: LOOKING TO THE FUTURE 177

Chapter 11 Conclusions 179
Objectives 179
Comparing cultures - enduring evidence 179
Cultural values - some further considerations 181
Should cultures be compared? 184

Cross-cultural management in 'new' forms of organisation 184
Diversity and synergy - the future of cross-cultural management 187
Non-managerial approaches 188
Universalism or relativism? - 189
Continuous change 189

References 190

Index 205