

Josef Seifert

Discours des Méthodes

The Methods of Philosophy and Realist Phenomenology

ontos

verlag

Frankfurt | Paris | Lancaster | New Brunswick

TABLE OF CONTENTS

DISCOURS DES MÉTHODES

THE METHODS OF PHILOSOPHY AND REALIST PHENOMENOLOGY

INTRODUCTION

What is a 'Method'? 11

CHAPTER ONE : PHILOSOPHICAL METHODS AS KINDS OF KNOWLEDGE USED IN PHILOSOPHY

I. Intuition/Intellectual Vision of Necessary Essences 18

II. Insight into Necessary States of Affairs Rooted in Necessary Essences 26

III. Experience, Empirical and a priori Knowledge..... 32

IV. Mediated ("Speculative") Intuitive Knowledge whose Objects are Given "in the Mirror" of Others as a Form of Intuition Distinct from First Order Immediate Intuition of Essences and Immediate Insights 34

V. Reasoning (Inferring and Demonstrating) and Mediate Deductive
Forms of Knowledge as Methods of Philosophy..... 37

VI. Intuitive Knowledge of less than Necessary Essences of a Certain Intelligible Kind..... 42

VII. Immediate Philosophical Knowledge of Real Existence —
The actus essendi and Epoché of Essence: A first Break with the Exclusiveness of the Methods of Epoché of Real Existence,
'Eidetic Intuition (Reduction),' and Wesenseinsicht 46

VIII. The Manifold Methods and Forms of Knowledge of Concretely Existing Beings: A Second Break with the Exclusiveness of the Methods of Epoché and of ‘Eidetic Intuition (Reduction)’ / Wesenseinsicht	51
IX. Imperfect Understanding and docta ignorantia as Methods of Knowing the Incomprehensible: Apories, Apparent Antinomies, Paradoxes, and the Infinite	61
X. The Importance Experience Holds for All Philosophical/Phenomenological Methods and Its Different Forms and Uses in Philosophy and Empirical Science.....	62
CHAPTER TWO: PHILOSOPHICAL/PHENOMENOLOGICAL METHODS INHERENT IN KNOWLEDGE ITSELF AS WAYS TO OBTAIN AND PERFECT KNOWLEDGE
CHAPTER THREE: PHENOMENOLOGICAL (PHILOSOPHICAL) METHODS IN THE THIRD SENSE—THE TOOLS (OR TRICKS) USED TO OBTAIN PHILOSOPHICAL KNOWLEDGE
I. Abstraction.....	73
II. Free Variation in Imagination.....	73
III. Methodic Doubt.....	74
IV. Epoché in the Double Sense of ‘Eidetic Reduction’ of Bracketing Real Existence and of Bracketing Inessential Moments of Essences in Eidetic Reduction.....	78
V. Epoché as Bracketing Opinions of Earlier Philosophers	85
VI. Transcendental Epoché as an Invalid Method (in the Third Sense) that Presupposes a False Interpretation of the Objects of Philosophical Knowledge	85

VII. Linguistic Analysis	87
VIII. Hermeneutics of Texts and History of Philosophy as Tools To Reach Philosophical Understanding of Things — A Transcendent Use of Texts	88
IX. Philosophical Texts and the Things They Speak about	91
X. The Two Ways in Which the Understanding of Texts Presupposes An Understanding of Things and Can Perform Its Role as Tools for Philosophical Knowledge Only if a “Canon of Transcendence” is Applied in the Hermeneutics of Interpreting Texts	95
XI. The “Negative Test”	110