

1 h C ist
'Revision
Fifth Edition

Donald M. Murray
Professor Emeritus
The University of New Hampshire

UNIVERSITÄT
LIECHTENSTEIN
Bibliothek

WADSWORTH
CENGAGE Learning-

CONTENTS

Preface xi

Chapter 1

REWRITE BEFORE WRITING 1

Why Do We Resist Rewriting? 2

An Invitation: Write with Me 5

How Do You Find Something to Write About? 6

Brainstorming 6

Interview Yourself 9

Circle the Subject 10

Try Out Lines 11

Play with Images 12

Make Connections 13

What If 14

Be Specific 15

End-of-Chapter Interviews 18

Interview with a Published Writer—Elizabeth Cooke 18

Chapter 2

HOW TO GET THE WRITING DONE:

TRICKS OF THE WRITER'S TRADE 24

Nulla Dies Sine Linea 26

Establish Achievable Deadlines 27

Break a Writing Assignment into Small Daily Tasks 28

Know Tomorrow's Task Today 28

Keep a Daybook 29

Rehearse 30

A Writer's Place 30

Chapter 3

READING FOR REVISION 32

Test Readers 33

Where Do We Find Test Readers? 33

What Test Readers Do 34

The Danger of Test Readers 34

Setting the Reader's Agenda 36

Reading Writing in Process 37

Techniques of Responding 38

Methods of Reader Response 40

Chapter 4

REWRITE WITH FOCUS 44

Elements of Focus 45

Selection 45

Emphasis 46

Clarity 46

Premature Focusing 46

How to Focus 48

~"

The List 48

The Discovery Draft 50

What if I Don't Discover in My Discovery Draft? 54

How Do I Make an Instructor's Idea My Own? 54

Understand the Assignment 55

Interview the Assignment 55

Rewrite by Context 56

Connect 57

How Do I Make the Boss's Idea My Own? 57

Focus Repair	58
Diagnosis: No Focus	58
Testing Your Focus	59
If the Diagnosis Is Positive	61
Say One Thing	62
How Can I Find That One Thing?	62
But What about All the Other Good Stuff?	67
Frame Your Meaning	67
What to Leave Out	68
What to Keep In	69
Set the Distance	69
When to Use Close-ups	70
When to Step Back	70
When to Zoom	70
Interview with a Published Writer—Christopher Scanlan	71

Chapter 5

REWRITE WITH GENRE 75

Choosing the Genre	76
Genre Provides Meaning	77
The Five-Paragraph Theme	78
The Unshaped Material	79
Diagnosis: Ineffective Genre	83
Genre Communicates Meaning	84
Discovering the Genre for the Draft	85
The Internal Genre	85
The External Genre	86
The Essential Narrative	89
Narrative's Clock	90
Questions Answered; Questions Asked	91
Walking Beside the Reader	92
Reading the Listener	92
Entertaining the Reader	93

Design Your Own Genre	93
The Discovered Genre	93
The Invented Genre	94
Create an Effective Design	95
What Is Saved	96
What Is Discarded	97
Case History of a Student Writer—Maureen Healy	97

Chapter 6

REWRITE WITH STRUCTURE 119

Diagnosis: Disorder	120
Answer the Reader's Questions	123
Outline After Writing	125
- Expose the Structure of a Draft	125
Outline After Writing	126
Adapt the Structure	126
Redesign the Structure	126
Interview with a Student Writer—Kathryn S. Evans	127

Chapter 7

REWRITE WITH DOCUMENTATION 133

Diagnosis: Too Little Information	135
The Writer's Eye	136
The Importance of Information	139
Provides Reader Satisfaction	139
Establishes Authority	140
Produces Lively Writing	140
The Qualities of Effective Information	141
Accuracy	141
Specificity	143
Significance	144
Fairness	146

The Basic Forms of Information	146
Where Do You Find Information?	148
Memory	148
Observation	149
Internet	150
Interview	150
Library	151
Attribution	154
Writing with Information	156
The Craft of Selection	156
Style	157
Interview with a Student Writer—Jennifer Bradley-Swift	160

Chapter 8

REWRITE TO DEVELOP 166

Diagnosis: Superficial	167
Techniques of Development	168
Develop with Information	168
Develop with Authority	169
Develop with Clarity	171
Put Meaning in Context	172
Rewriting Starts with Rereading	172
Read Fragments	174
Read What Isn't Written	175
Problem: No Territory	176
Solution	176
Problem: No Surprise	176
Solution	177
Problem: No Writer	177
Solution	177
Problem: No Respect	178
Solution	178
Problem: Too Little	178
Solution	179
Problem: Too Much	179

Solution	180
Problem: Too Private	180
Solution	180
Problem: No Significance	181
Solution	181
Problem: No Connection	181
Solution	182

Rewrite within the Draft	182
Emphasize the Significant	183
Pace and Proportion	185
Length	187

Chapter 9

REWRITE BY EAR 194

What Is Voice?	195
Hearing Your Own Writing	196
Diagnosis: No Voice	199
Hearing the Writer's Voice	200
Hearing Your Own Voice	205
Your Language or Mine?	206
The Importance of Voice	207
The Expected Voice	208
The Formal Voice	209
The Informal Voice	209
Genre Voices	209
The Voice of the Draft	210
Case History of a Professional Writer —Donald M. Murray	211

Chapter 10

REWRITE WITH CLARITY 216

Twenty Ways to Unfinal a Draft	218
The Attitude of the Editing Writer	220
Writing Is Editing	220

- Imagine the Reader 220
- My Ear Is a Better Editor Than My Eye 221
- The Draft Will Tell You What It Needs 221
- Welcome Surprise 221
- Language Is Alive and Changing 221
- Accept Limitations 222
- Establish Achievable Standards 222
- Interview Your Draft 222
- Solutions to Common Editing Problems 226
 - How Do I Recognize Surprise? 226
 - How to Read to Edit 227
 - How to Edit a Boring Draft so It Isn't 229
- The Craft of Editing 232
 - The Tools of Revision 233
- A Student Case History—Roger LePage, Jr. 234
 - The Student's Original Draft 235
 - A Professional's Editing 239
 - The Student's Reaction to Professional Editing 245
 - The Student's Revision 248

Chapter 11

THE CRAFT OF LETTING GO 252

- Why Writers Don't Let Go 254
 - Fear of Exposure 254
 - Obsession with Correctness 255
 - Continuing Discovery 255
- How to Let Go 256
 - Deadlines 256
 - Collaboration 257
 - Decreased Discovery 257
- When You Let Go 257
 - Readers Make the Draft Theirs 257
 - Free to Write 259