

The Future of Architecture. Since 1889.

—

Jean-Louis
Cohen

Table of contents

01

Sheds to rails: the dominion of steel

- 018 - The lamp of style
- 019 - The eminence of the Beaux-Arts
- 023 - Programs of modernization
- 023 - Networks of internationalization

07

In search of a language: from classicism to Cubism

- 090 - Anglo-American classicisms
- 092 - German nostalgia
- 093 - Loos and the lure of "Western culture"
- 097 - Berlage and the question of proportions
- 100 - Cubism and cubistics

13

Architecture and revolution in Russia

- 162 - The shock of revolution
- 165 - A profession renewed
- 166 - The "social condensers"
- 171 - Polemics and rivalries
- 171 - The Palace of the Soviets competition

02

The search for modern form

- 028 - Toward a "new art" from Paris to Berlin
- 031 - Great Britain after the Arts and Crafts
- 034 - Art Nouveau and the Paris-Nancy axis
- 036 - From Italian "Floreal" to Russian "Modern"
- 036 - The Catalan renaissance

08

The Great War and its side effects

- 102 - A triple mobilization
- 103 - The spread of Taylorism
- 103 - Commemoration and reconstruction
- 106 - Postwar recomposition
- 108 - New architects between science and propaganda

14

The architecture of social reform

- 176 - Modernizing cities
- 180 - Red Vienna
- 181 - The new Frankfurt
- 185 - Taut's housing developments in Berlin
- 186 - French suburbs
- 186 - Echoes overseas
- 189 - Equipping the suburbs

Introduction

Architecture's expanded field

- 010 - Two thresholds in time
- 013 - The carousel of hegemonies
- 014 - The continuity of type
- 015 - Historians versus architects, or the problem of inclusion

03

Domestic innovation and tectonic expression

- 042 - The central place of Great Britain
- 043 - Residential reform
- 043 - Unifying the urban landscape
- 046 - The advent of reinforced concrete
- 053 - Concrete nationalisms

09

Expressionism in Weimar Germany and the Netherlands

- 110 - The Arbeitsrat für Kunst
- 111 - Dynamism in architecture
- 117 - Hanseatic Expressionism
- 118 - De Klerk and the Amsterdam School

15

Internationalization, its networks and spectacles

- 190 - The journal as printed stage
- 191 - Model cities and open-air exhibitions
- 194 - Modern architecture enters the museums
- 195 - The International Congresses of Modern Architecture (CIAM)
- 198 - Networks of influence and historical narratives

04

American rediscovered, tall and wide

- 056 - Chicago in white and black
- 057 - Sullivan's inventions
- 060 - Wright and prairie architecture
- 063 - Wright and Europe
- 067 - The skyscraper migrates to New York

10

Return to order in Paris

- 124 - Purist forms and urban compositions
- 127 - Le Corbusier and the modern house
- 128 - Grand vessels in Paris and Geneva
- 128 - Perret and the "sovereign shelter"
- 129 - Paris Art Deco
- 132 - Mallet-Stevens, or elegant modernism
- 136 - The extent of French modernism

16

Futurism and Rationalism in Fascist Italy

- 200 - A second Futurism
- 200 - Muzio and the Novecento
- 204 - The regime and Rationalism
- 207 - Terragni's geometries
- 208 - An ambiguous "Mediterraneanism"
- 209 - New territories

05

The challenge of the metropolis

- 070 - An explosion without precedent
- 071 - The planners' toolbox
- 071 - Town, square, and monument
- 076 - The idyll of the garden city
- 077 - Zoning for the colonies and for Europe's metropolises

11

Dada, De Stijl, and Mies: from subversiveness to elementarism

- 138 - The Dada blast
- 138 - The new forms of De Stijl
- 143 - Van Doesburg builds
- 143 - Oud and Rietveld, from furniture to house design
- 148 - Mies van der Rohe's theoretical projects

17

The spectrum of classicisms and traditionalisms

- 212 - Literal classicism
- 215 - Modern classicism
- 216 - Traditionalism and self-critical modernism
- 217 - Opportunism without borders
- 217 - Islands of coexistence

06

New production, new aesthetic

- 082 - The AEG model in Berlin
- 083 - Factory as inspiration
- 085 - The Deutscher Werkbund
- 088 - Futurist mechanization

12

Architectural education in turmoil

- 152 - The Beaux-Arts and the alternatives
- 153 - The Weimar Bauhaus
- 156 - The Bauhaus in Dessau and Berlin
- 156 - The Vkhutemas in Moscow
- 161 - Innovative schools in the new and old worlds

18

North American modernities

- 224 - Wright, the return
- 231 - Los Angeles - fertile ground
- 232 - The skyscraper reloaded
- 236 - Industrial products:
between factory and market
- 238 - The New Deal's housing reform and the European immigration

19

Functionalism and machine aesthetics

- 240 - Taylorism and architecture
- 241 - From ergonomics to standard dimensions
- 242 - Poetic functionalism: Chareau and Nelson
- 243 - Dynamic functionalism in France and the United States

25

Le Corbusier reinvented and reinterpreted

- 322 - The Unité d'Habitation
- 322 - Of palaces and houses
- 324 - The surprise of Ronchamp
- 325 - Indian adventures
- 326 - Invention and introspection
- 326 - Corbusian mannerisms
- 330 - Anglo-American Brutalism
- 334 - The saga of Brasília

31

The postmodern season

- 412 - From nostalgia to play
- 413 - The "end of prohibitions"
- 414 - Retrieving urbanity's figures
- 417 - America turns postmodern
- 418 - The uncertain front of postmodernism
- 422 - The city - composition or collage?

20

Modern languages conquer the world

- 250 - British reticence defeated
- 255 - Northern European modernisms
- 258 - The modern as Czechoslovakia's national brand
- 260 - The moderns in Hungary and Poland
- 261 - Balkan figures
- 262 - Iberian modernization
- 264 - Japanese experiments
- 265 - Brazilian curves

26

The shape of American hegemony

- 338 - The second skyscraper age
- 342 - Mies the American
- 345 - Wright's last return
- 346 - Research out west
- 349 - Gropius and Breuer: the assimilation of the Bauhaus
- 351 - Saarinen's lyricism and Johnson's anxiety
- 352 - The solitude of Kahn
- 353 - From experimentation to commerce

32

From regionalism to critical internationalism

- 424 - Scarpa, or the rediscovery of craft
- 426 - Siza's poetic rigor
- 427 - Collective endeavor in the Ticino
- 431 - Moneo and Iberia
- 432 - Europe as a field of experience
- 433 - Research in South Asia
- 434 - Latin American personalities
- 434 - A critical internationalism

21

Colonial experiences and new nationalisms

- 272 - From Arabizing to modernizing in North Africa
- 275 - Near Eastern and African endeavors
- 275 - Italian cities around the Mediterranean
- 277 - The modernization of Turkey and Iran
- 279 - Chinese pluralism
- 283 - Modern hegemony in Palestine

27

Repression and diffusion of modernism

- 358 - Seven Sisters in Moscow
- 359 - Socialist realism exported
- 359 - Khrushchev's critique
- 360 - Aalto's eminent position
- 366 - Japan's new energy
- 367 - Latin Americanisms
- 372 - Archipelagoes of invention

33

The neo-Futurist optimism of high tech

- 438 - Beaubourg establishes a canon
- 439 - Composition according to Rogers
- 439 - Experimentation according to Piano
- 441 - Structure according to Foster
- 445 - Architects and engineers
- 446 - New geometries

22

Architecture of a total war

- 286 - Front lines and home fronts
- 287 - Extreme scales
- 288 - Air raid protection
- 291 - Constructive and destructive techniques
- 291 - Mobility and flexibility
- 292 - Architecture of military occupation
- 292 - Imagining the postwar world
- 294 - Converting to peace
- 294 - Memory and memorials

28

Toward new utopias

- 378 - Italy: critical continuity
- 381 - Independent together
- 385 - Technology: ethos or icon?
- 386 - Hovering cities of indeterminacy
- 388 - Metabolism in Japan
- 388 - Megastructures and global agitation
- 389 - Technology and its double

34

Architecture's outer boundaries

- 450 - Gehry, or the seduction of art
- 454 - Koolhaas, or fantastic realism
- 455 - Nouvel, or mystery recovered
- 457 - Herzog and de Meuron, or the principle of the collection
- 459 - Deconstructivists and rationalists
- 463 - Fragmentation and poetry in Japan

23

Tabula rasa to horror vacui: reconstruction and renaissance

- 298 - An American age
- 299 - Literal reconstruction or radical modernization?
- 301 - The "neighborhood unit" as model
- 302 - The traditionalists at work
- 302 - In search of a British model
- 303 - German debates
- 309 - A modernist triumph?

29

Between elitism and populism: alternative architecture

- 394 - Research and technocracy
- 395 - Venturi's critique
- 396 - Grays and Whites
- 401 - From functionalism to advocacy planning

35

Vanishing points

- 469 - Strategic geographies
- 471 - Reinvented materials
- 471 - Sustainable buildings
- 472 - The city reborn yet threatened
- 473 - Landscape as horizon
- 473 - Hypermodern media
- 474 - Persistent social expectations

24

The fatal crisis of the Modern Movement, and the alternatives

- 310 - The Festival of Britain
- 312 - Italian Neorealism
- 314 - Planet Brazil
- 318 - Housing and innovation in North Africa
- 319 - CIAM in turmoil
- 320 - The end of CIAM

30

After 1968: architecture for the city

- 404 - 1968, annus mirabilis
- 405 - Observing the extended city
- 405 - The shape of the city
- 408 - The input of the user

- 476 - Notes
- 494 - Bibliography
- 506 - Index
- 526 - Acknowledgments and credits