

Magritte and Photography

PATRICK ROEGIERS

translated from the French
by MARK POLIZZOTTI

TABLE OF CONTENTS

6	PROLOGUE: Watch the (Real) Birdie!
1. EDUCATING THE PAINTER (1898-1930)
12	Family Photos: The Tender Secrets of Childhood
21	My. How You've Changed, Rene!
27	Georgette and Rene: A Love Story in Pictures
34	Oh, My Friends, Let Us Laugh Hearty and Drink Deep!
39	The Double Figure, or the Challenge to Resemblance
43	The Conquest of Paris, or the Outskirts of Success
52	Self-Portrait of Creation: Attempting the Impossible
2. CREATING THE PHOTOGRAPHER (1930-1954)
61	The Return to Brussels, Georgette's Charm
71	Photography Is the Art of Disobedience: Let's Use It for All It's Worth
74	Vacations from Life, Vacancies of Sight
85	The Genius of Discoveries, the Gaiety of Rediscoveries
97	Painting Put to the Test of Fixed Images
3. INCARNATING THE CHARACTER (1955-1967)
106	Commissioned Portraits, or the Irony of Fame
113	Self-Portrait, or the Artist's Face Captured in Photographs
120	"We're Not Nonexistent Enough"
129	May I Take Your Portrait, Dear Rene Magritte?
146	EPILOGUE: Please—You Look Like You've Just Come from a Funeral.
151	Notes
166	By the Same Author
167	Acknowledgements