

Le Corbusier
Looking at city planning

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY ELEANOR LEVIEUX

AN ORION PRESS BOOK

GROSSMAN PUBLISHERS · NEW YORK 1971

071790
LONGMONT PUBLIC LIBRARY
LONGMONT COLORADO

CONTENTS

Introduction
1	The year 1943 and the years that followed	1
2	The technical viewpoint—the spiritual viewpoint— the solidarity between them	5
3	A new machine age society The architectural revolution that takes place Atlas of the ways in which new ideas in architecture and city planning have been applied	11
4	The rules: human beings and nature	27
5	Acquiring a set of tools	31
6	Creating a set of city-planning tools to be used by the machine age society Housing units: the dwelling and extensions of the dwelling Work units Leisure time units Traffic units Landscaping units	45
7	Attempt at urbanistic exploration The rural unit The industrial city	77
8	Occupying the ground	95
9	We are not talking about preconceived ideas Preamble to a builder's statute	101
10	Applications and plans	115
Appendices		135
I. Statement by Ascoral
II. The doctrine once laid down, how to apply it?
III. Eleven study groups drew it up		