

Green Capital
A New Perspective on Growth

Christian de Perthuis
and Pierre-Andre Jouvét

Translated by Michael Westlake

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY PRESS
NEW YORK

Contents

INTRODUCTION

The Color of Growth i

1

Growth: A Historical Accident? 9

2

The Spaceship Problem: An Optimal Population Size? 18

3

Degrowth: Good Questions, Bad Answers 26

4

Introducing the Environment into the Calculation of Wealth 36

Contents

5
"Natural Capital" Revisited	47
6
Hotelling: Beyond the Wall of Scarcity	55
7
Nature Has No Price: How Then Is the Cost of Its Degradation to Be Measured?	67
8
Beyond Hotelling: Natural Capital as a Factor Required for Growth	76
9
Water, the Shepherd, and the Owner: A Choice of Green Growth Models	89
10
How Much Is Your Genome Worth?	99
11
The Enhancement of Biodiversity: Managing Access, Pricing Usage	112.
12
Climate Change: The Challenges of Carbon Pricing	122
13
International Climate Negotiations	137

Contents

14
The "Energy Transition": Not Enough or Too Much Oil and Gas?	152
15
The Inescapable Question of the Price of Energy	164
16
Nuclear Energy: A Rising-Cost Technology	177
17
Growth-Generating Innovations	185
18
Planning or the Market: What Are the Catalysts?	197
19
European Strategy: Jump Out of the Warm Water!	214
CONCLUSION
Green Capital, Green Capitalism?	231
Notes	237
Index	259