

Ethnography for Designers

Galen Cranz

13 Routledge

Taylor & Francis Group

LONDON AND NEW YORK

Contents

Preface	viii
Background	viii
How can designers understand users?	ix
Why ethnography?	x
How ethnography works	xii
Acknowledgments	xiv
PART 1	1
The ethnographic design project
1 Introduction to design ethnography	3
1.1 The responsibility of the designer	3
1.2 Introduction to semantic ethnography	4
1.3 Ethnography in the design of places: programming and evaluation	5
1.4 The value of fieldwork and semantic analysis	6
1.5 Ethnography as an agent of change	11
1.6 Limits of the ethnographic method	12
1.7 Chapter summary	13
1.8 Chapter review: main ideas	14
2 The ethnographic design project: a step-by-step overview	16
2.1 Project description overview	16
2.2 Planning your study	18
2.3 Objectivity	19
2.4 Making up for lack of objectivity	20
2.5 Taking notes	21
2.6 Selecting a sited micro-culture	21
2.7 A physical setting is required	25
2.8 Accessibility	26
2.9 Why you should avoid familiar environments	27
2.10 Dealing with unfamiliar settings	29
2.11 Initial redesign proposal	32
2.12 Chapter review: summary of main ideas	34

3	Sited micro-cultures	37
3.1	Defining culture	37
3.2	Culture as knowledge	38
3.3	Understanding sited micro-cultures in our complex society	39
3.4	Sited micro-cultures and social situations	40
3.5	Sharing cultural knowledge, or not	40
3.6	Chapter review: summary of main ideas	42
4	Cultural informants	44
4.1	The informant	44
4.2	Talking to strangers	44
4.3	Working in teams	45
4.4	Combining observation, participation, and talking to informants	46
4.5	Number of informants	47
4.6	The good informant	48
4.7	Locating an informant using an intermediary	48
4.8	Other ways of choosing an informant	49
4.9	Explaining ethnographic research	50
4.10	Recording ethnographic research	53
4.11	Chapter review: summary of main ideas	56
5	Finding meaning in taxonomies	59
5.1	Understanding a sited culture	59
5.2	Elements of cultural knowledge	59
5.3	Discovering cultural categories	60
5.4	The grand tour question	61
5.5	Taxonomies: the organization of categories	62
5.6	The structural question	70
5.7	Different kinds of definitions	71
5.8	The attribute question	75
5.9	Identifying themes	76
5.10	Distorting your informant's knowledge	77
5.11	Chapter review: summary of main ideas	82
6	Literature review: what do others say?	85
6.1	The basics of a literature review	85
6.2	The format of an annotated bibliography	90
6.3	How to find sources	90
6.4	How to evaluate sources	92
6.5	A list of useful online resources for architectural ethnographies	92
6.6	A note of caution on Internet research	93
6.7	Comparing the etic and emic points of view	93
6.8	Chapter view: summary of main ideas	93
7	Translating into physical design	96
7.1	Serving society through design	96
7.2	Conventional programming versus deep programming	97
7.3	Moving from description to design	97
7.4	Translating ethnography into physical design	103

7.5	Responding to conflicts (and ethical challenges) in design	106
7.6	Chapter review: summary of main ideas	108
PART 2
Report-writing and sample reports		111
8	Preparing the final report	113
8.1	Introduction	113
8.2	Site description	114
8.3	Methods	114
8.4	Findings	114
8.5	Redesign and discussion	114
8.6	Conclusion	114
8.7	Your bibliography	115
8.8	Sample reports	115
9	The design board	117
9.1	Purpose of design boards	117
9.2	Tips for effective poster-making	117
9.3	Sample design boards	124
10	Sample ethnographic reports	125
10.1	Introduction to sample projects	125
10.2	List of ethnographic design projects	125
	Fast, Slow Food: A Gourmet Fast Food Restaurant , Emily Alter	128
	First Time Mothers and Babies , Leslie Becker	137
	An Irish Pub , Flavia Carvalho	147
	An Assisted Living and Alzheimer's Community , Justin Chen	157
	Recipe for an Engaging Farmers' Market , Kevin Chong	166
	Community Sustenance: Sunday Brunch at a Thai Buddhist Temple , Elizabeth Leah Cohn-Martin	176
	L'fccole Frangaise: Education, Engagement, and the French Language and Culture , Caitlin DeClercq	185
	Coworking , Ryan Hunt	201
	You Are Now Entering a Sci-Fi Bookstore , Megan Landes	212
	A Martial Arts School , Douglas Look	223
	For Whom the Booth Tolls , Marianne Moore	230
	A Japantown Hardware Store , Karen Okazaki	234
	Glossary of key terms	242
	Bibliography	259
	Index	266