

Essentials of Entrepreneurship

Evidence and Practice

Robert A. Baron

Oklahoma State University, USA

Edward Elgar

Cheltenham, UK • Northampton, MA, USA

Full contents

About the author	x
Preface	xi
Acknowledgements	xv

PART I FOUNDATIONS OF ENTREPRENEURSHIP

1 Entrepreneurship: Changing the world . . . one idea at a time	3
Entrepreneurship: Why it's not synonymous with new venture formation	4
Why entrepreneurship is important: Economic growth, "giving back," and maximizing human motivation	8
What do entrepreneurs seek? Wealth? Fame? Doing social good? Answer: All of the above	13
Acquiring the knowledge we seek: Why the insights of entrepreneurs—even highly successful ones—are often not enough	19
A roadmap of this book: Its special features	23
2 Cognitive foundations of entrepreneurship	26
Human cognition: Its basic nature—and important limitations	28
Creativity: Where entrepreneurship begins	37
Creativity and innovation: From ideas to reality	49
Entrepreneurial cognition: Inside the mind of the entrepreneur	52
3 Opportunities: Their nature, discovery, and creation	59
Opportunities: Their basic nature	62
Opportunities: Discovered, created or both?	62
Opportunity recognition: The role of information, experience, and social networks	66
Individual differences in opportunity recognition: The nature and impact of alertness	68
Cognitive foundations of opportunity recognition: Pattern recognition, structural alignment, and regulatory focus theory	71
How entrepreneurs can become skilled at recognizing opportunities	80

PART II GATHERING ESSENTIAL RESOURCES

4	Feasibility analysis . . . and other essential information: What entrepreneurs need to know before they begin	89
	Is the opportunity worth pursuing? Basic dimensions of feasibility analysis	91
	Industry analysis: Why some industries are more favorable for new ventures than others	99
	Other essential information: Being familiar with key government policies and regulations	107
5	Transforming ideas into reality: Careful planning . . . and improvising	118
	Business plans: Formal guides to creating value	121
	The importance of flexibility: Improvisation and bricolage	134
	Effectuation: Using what you have to get where, perhaps, you want to go	140
6	Assembling key resources I: Obtaining, managing, and using financial assets	148
	Financial resources: Where to find them—and how to obtain them	150
	Estimating financial needs: How much will it cost to get started, and how will these funds be used?	162
	Why obtaining financial resources is often difficult: Overcoming investors' caution	168
7	Assembling key resources II: Building a strong founding team, developing social networks, and obtaining expert advice	176
	Building a strong founding team—and beyond: Developing the new venture's human capital	178
	Developing high-quality social networks: Why who you know really does matter	186
	Obtaining expert advice	193
8	The central role of entrepreneurs: How their skills, motives, and characteristics shape new venture success	199
	Essential skills entrepreneurs need—and should develop	202
	Are entrepreneurs really different? And if so, why ?	214
	Emotion and passion: The “feeling” side of entrepreneurship	224

PART III MANAGING AND BUILDING THE NEW VENTURE

9	Legal aspects of new ventures: Non-disclosure and non-compete agreements, intellectual property, and franchising	237
	Can you legally start a new venture? Not if you have signed agreements that limit your right to do so	240
	Legal protections for what you have created: Copyrights, trademarks, and patents	243
	Other means of protecting the products of your creativity: Trade secrets and complementary assets	257
	Franchising: A new venture “in a box”?	261
10	Managing a new venture: What entrepreneurs should know to do it well	267
	Motivating employees—and understanding your own motives	269
	Leading and exerting influence	278
	Making effective decisions	287
11	Building the new venture: Strategies for attaining growth	298
	Why new ventures seek growth—and is it always the best route to success?	299
	Strategies for attaining growth	306
	Entrepreneurial orientation (EO): A key strategy for new ventures	316
PART IV DEALING WITH ADVERSITY AND LEAVING THE NEW VENTURE
12	Endings . . . and beginnings: How—and when—entrepreneurs leave the companies they founded	327
	Different ways of saying “farewell”	328
	Is taking their company public always the “golden ring” for entrepreneurs?	335
	Exit by necessity rather than choice: The effects of business failure	344
	Author index	357
	Subject index	360